DIFFERENTIATION OF INDO-EUROPEAN COMMUNITY

The data about the character and the depth of the genetic relations between the language groups of the Indo-European family and about pre-historical contacts between them take an important place in the Indo-European reconstruction. The article deals with the modern points of view upon the process of differentiation (articulation, disintegration) of Indo-European language family. An attempt to specify and add (widen) the derivative model of the development of the Indo-European family, represented in the scientific works of the 80ies - the beginning of the 90ies, is made.
